

Charlie Wingard 2018 Annual Report

I continue to labor out-of-bounds at Reformed Theological Seminary in Jackson, as well as serving as pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Yazoo City.

I serve as associate professor of practical theology, dean of students, dean of chapel, director of field education, and faculty advisor for the Student Cabinet, Women in Ministry, and the African American Leadership Initiative. I also serve on the RTS Jackson Scholarship Committee, the RTS Jackson Hughes Scholarship Committee, and the RTS Jackson Admissions Committee

I work with students to prepare them for the pastoral search process and to ensure their understanding of the manners and etiquette expected of gospel ministers. Chapel services are a time to model a reverent approach to worship, ministry, and pastoral care.

During the academic year, I taught the following courses:

Master of Divinity
Christian Life in a Secular World
Communications 1
Communications 2
Directed Study for two students
Field Education Seminar
Introduction to Pastoral and Theological Studies (with Ligon Duncan)
Introduction to Preaching
Leadership
Preaching Lab 1
Preaching Lab 2
Principles of Sanctification
Theology of Worship

Master of Arts in Marriage and Family Therapy and Counseling
Applied Theology

Doctor of Ministry
Thesis Advisor for two students

My time with students includes personal, marriage, and vocational counseling.

My wife, Lynne, is actively involved in the seminary's life. She meets with female students and helps them host gatherings. She also prepares meals for families of students who have needs because of the birth of a child, job related stresses, or poor health.

Lynne and I love working at RTS.

Thank you, brothers, for praying for RTS and for me. I cherish our fellowship in the Lord and partnership in the gospel.
